1. Subject explains Anatolii's presence on the train by the supposition that he learned of her brush with the "EKVD", and either heard of her intention to take the night train, or assumed that she might well do so. She states that she can recall no explanation of his leaving the train at Aue instead of Chemnitz being either asked or given.
2. CAUTERY 10 and Anatolii agreed that he would write to her in German, and she to him in Russian. She explained that she has a friend who writes fluent Russian and whom she can trust. This friend actually exists, and lives in west Berlin.
3. As an attachment hereto we submit a page from CAUTERY 10's notebook, on which Anatolii is reported to have written his name and address with his own hand.
